

MEDICAL MISADVENTURES

WHAT I DIDN'T LEARN IN MEDICAL SCHOOL

WEDNESDAY, 30 OCTOBER 2019 | 12 NOON TO 5 PM

Atrium of the Brodie Centre, 727 McDermot Avenue

ARNOLD TWEED, MD is a son of the prairies. He grew up on a farm in southern Manitoba, went to High School in Killarney, and graduated from Brandon College in 1959. His early ambition was to be a cowboy, but he got side-tracked and graduated with an MD from the University of Manitoba in 1964. Since then he has forayed into several medical fields: general practice, emergency medicine, intensive care and anesthesiology as well as attempts at medical research, teaching and medical administration – and more recently writing medical memoirs.

Never having abandoned his early yearning for the carefree cowboy life, he has travelled widely, and has worked in Canada, Denmark, New Zealand, Oman, Bahrain, Saudi Arabia, and Nepal. His travels and diverse medical ventures have been well rewarded. Some of the most important lessons he has learned about medicine have come from chance encounters with unusual patients, unique characters and strange medical situations. MEDICAL MISADVENTURES builds on some of those experiences.